

Listening to Infosound

Infosound is a registered charity and professional producer of impartial news and information, in audio, specifically for blind and partially-sighted people in Great Britain.

We produce and broadcast information on a very broad range of subjects, such as daily-living products, leisure and holidays, social opportunities, hobbies and sport, mobility and travel, housing, employment and training, money and consumer issues, support services, news stories and events.

We not only produce information that is relevant to the whole of the Great Britain, but we also feature regional and local services, events and information. And we also broadcast vision-impaired people's hints, tips, items of information and comments.

Infosound is broadcast as a round-the-clock, rolling stream of information and, separately, the most recent audio items can also be browsed individually and heard on-demand.

Everything we produce is original public service information to help daily living with sight loss and making Infosound easily-accessible to anyone who wants to listen it is core to our aims. But because the information we produce is being updated fairly frequently, posting out a CD or USB memory stick is not an option for us.

So, in order to make sure we can be heard by vision-impaired people with different listening devices available to them, everything we produce can be heard on any standard landline phone (ideally in speaker-phone mode), with the telephone's keypad being able to navigate, select and even control the playback of the sound. Both our constantly-rolling broadcast and its associated on-demand service can be heard in this way.

And both services can also be heard on any computer, laptop, tablet or smart mobile phone as well as on several specialist audio players.
