

Suggested introductory script for using Infosound audio material in an audio publication or programme

From time to time, you'll be hearing some of the latest audio features produced by the Infosound information service.

They produce information for vision-impaired people in Great Britain on just about any subject that might be relevant to someone who lives with sight loss; for example: daily-living aids and products, benefits, holidays, mobility, travel, housing, employment, training, leisure, sport, money, consumer matters, hobbies and the important issues of the moment.

The round-the-clock Infosound broadcast can be heard on any phone, on the charity's web site and on British Wireless for the Blind Fund's Sonata players and Bumblebee tablet. And they also have an on-demand service, which enables listeners to choose whatever they want to listen-to when it suits them.

And to find out more, or to listen, you can visit www.infosound.org.uk or phone 03000 111 555 – that's 03000 111 555.